

People at Work

The transactional approach was practiced through the 'transfer of learning' from the theoretical knowledge of vegetables to a real-life set up in the school. Our young learners recently took part in Vegetable Market Day, where they explored different vegetables while learning about nutrition and healthy eating. The hands-on activity encouraged social interaction, fostered community spirit, and promoted responsibility and independence, offering valuable lessons in making healthy choices through teamwork and collaboration.

